

Deadline set to revive stalled treaty talks

DAILY NEWS MAY 1, 2009

The group representing the Snuneymuxw First Nation in treaty talks wants a face-to-face meeting with government ministers within a month, in an effort to revive the stalled negotiations.

Robert Morales, chief negotiator for the First Nation Unity Protocol Group, which represents more than 60 B.C. bands including the Snuneymuxw, said a letter has been sent to Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Premier Gordon Campbell asking the leaders to arrange a meeting with their ministers who are responsible for treaty negotiations.

The group decided to give both levels of government until May 25 to respond to the meeting request.
