PART 3 — ARCHAEOLOGICAL POTENTIAL MODEL

- 3.0 The Parties will endeavour to co-operate on the development and implementation of an archaeological potential model of Hul’qumi’num tumuhw. A central purpose of the modelling is the creation of archaeological potential mapping identifying areas of the landscape with the potential to contain archaeological sites protected under the Heritage Conservation Act.

Potential mapping combined with known site locations will be made available for use by land and resource managers and planners as an archaeological management tool to identify recorded and unrecorded archaeological heritage site locations that may be in conflict with development, in accordance with the Archaeology Branch's policy on access to information.

The archaeological potential model will be completed to provincial standards under the auspices of a Steering Committee. The steering committee will consist of provincial and Hul'qumi'num representatives and other partners, as agreed to by both parties.

Duties of the steering committee would consist of:

- Developing project terms of reference
- Choosing a suitable contractor (acknowledging that funding sources may have specific procurement processes)
- Developing a contract including a work plan identifying key tasks and completion dates.
- Reviewing project progress at completion of each key task
- Ensuring the project meets the terms and conditions of the contract

Such additional information may include requests that the permit applicant or developer conduct presentations, arrange field visits, or prepare additional studies.
- 6.2 The Hul'qumi'num Treaty Group, in collaboration with its member First Nations, will endeavour to review and provide comments to the Archaeology Branch on received permit applications within a 30 day period unless a shorter time frame is agreed upon.
- 6.3 Each of the Hul'qumi'num member First Nations reserve the right to independently comment on any received permit application from the Archaeology Branch.

- 6.6 Where the Hul'qumi'num Treaty Group or Hul'qumi'num member First Nations identify a potential infringement of an aboriginal right as a result of proposed activities in a section 12 or section 14 permit application in Hul'qumi'num tumuhw, the Archaeology Branch will either further engage in a consultation and accommodation process or will identify and advise the appropriate Crown agency responsible for this process.
- 6.7 The Archaeology Branch, in furtherance of the objects of the Act, will, where appropriate, continue to ensure that, heritage inspections and heritage investigations are conducted prior to considering the application for the section 12 alteration permit in order to conserve archaeological heritage sites threatened by development.
- 6.8 The Hul'qumi'num Treaty Group may request an extension to the time to submit comments on the permit application and the Archaeology Branch will not unreasonably withhold its consent to a reasonable request. The Parties acknowledge that in some instances the underlying project behind the archaeological work may be on a critical timeline and this will impact the Branch's ability to provide an extension of this period.
- 6.9 The Parties will endeavour to facilitate the issuance of permits where emergency impact management measures may be necessary, such as the discovery of ancient human remains in Hul'qumi'num tumuhw.

PART 7 – COMMENT ON FINAL PERMIT REPORTS

- 7.0 The Archaeology Branch will endeavour to provide the Hul'qumi'num Treaty Group and Hul'qumi'num member First Nations an opportunity to make written comment on the project scope, methodology, results and recommendations of the final permit reports for consideration in the Archaeology Branch's decision within a 30 day period unless a shorter time frame is agreed upon. - 7.2 The Parties acknowledge that the most appropriate time for including the information outlined in section 7.1 is before the final report is submitted to the Archaeology Branch with the material being provided directly to the permit holder but, failing that opportunity, the process set out in section 7.0 will be followed.
